CONCERNING CRIME

There are those in Morgan County who talk about the disregard of law, and the necessity for the punishment of criminals. It is a cry that is heard all over the land, but for different reasons, depending upon what particular law a particular person has in mind.

Back of the fight for law and order, however, stands the assassination of a man in Chicago by a rival gang, the killing of a little child playing in New York where racketeers shot out their feud, the petty and enormous graft that mars our political life and other criminal acts that occur here, and elsewhere, are each part of a disregard for law that has grown in this country.

Let us not attempt to be too wise in solving this problem, but, even so, let us think about one phase of the matter. We have observed, in this town and county, instances where public officials, charged with enforcing the law, have condoned criminal acts because victims have requested it. We have heard of affrays that have not come to court because neither principal made complaint, and the same has been true of other acts that violate the criminal code.

There are in the United States, we take it, enough police officials to enforce the laws of the land if they were properly imbued with a desire for law enforcement. It is a farce when a police official, learning of a violation of law, does nothing unless some citizen complains. It is not the business of the average citizen to swear out warrants, or to work up evidence. For these things we have officials and they should do their duty.

SAVE THE WATER

A very earnest plea is hereby made to the citizens of West Liberty to help each other to save the limited supply which can be supplied by our present water system.

The present pumping system raises approximately 10,000 gallons of water and puts it into the lines every 24 hours.

If this water were apportioned among our 115 consumers it would furnish more than 85 gallons per day to each outlet.

It is known that many persons are without water a goodly part of each day. It is claimed that many of the lines leak and that some water is lost in this way. Also many times investigation has revealed water being wasted by leaving spigots open.

If every person will help it will be possible to get along with our present arrangement until we get a new water system installed but unless more care is taken to use instead of waste the water we have the town board may be forced to take expensive measures to save the water we have available now.

You, I, everybody is hereby delegated a committee of one to see that the water we have is used instead of wasted.

For Circuit Judge 37th District

R. T. KENNARD

TO THE VOTERS OF THE THIRTY-SEVENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

For the last two years my friends have known that I would be a candidate this year for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge in the 37th Judicial District, composed of Carter, Elliott and Morgan Counties and I now desire to formally announce my candidacy for that nomination, subject to the action of the Democratic party in the primary election to be held on Saturday, August 5, 1939.

I was born and reared on a Carter County farm and learned about farming by holding the handles of a shovel plow hitched to a yoke of oxen, on a Smoky Valley hillside.
I came from the soil and not having the wings of a social butterfly, I never soared far enough away to lose my contact with it or love for it. I hope that it is not inappropriate for me to say here that my experience as a farm boy and a farm owner has implanted in me the deepest sympathy for the problems of the farmer—the man who feeds the world and who all too often, due to ruinous prices, is penalized for doing so.

My grandfather, Elza Kennard, was a brother to Elias Kennard and I have many relatives in Morgan County on my father's side of the house. My mother was a daughter of Jefferson B. Williams, who was a brother to Luke Williams, Harley Williams, John Williams and Keller Williams. I am glad to know that I have many relatives and friends in Morgan County.

Although, like many others, my formal schooling has been limited, it has fallen to my lot, and perhaps been my good fortune, to receive thorough training in the world's greatest school—the "University of Hard Knocks."

My five years of service as a country school teacher and my many years of experience as a practicing attorney and in dealing with my fellow men have convinced me that justice should be tempered with mercy and common sense and that today the need for the application of the Golden Rule is just as great as it was nineteen centuries ago. I believe in the well recognized principle that in a free country absolute or unlimited power does not exist, not even in the largest majority, and I am opposed to the abuse of official power, whether it be judicial, legislative or executive.

My nearly eight years of experience in conducting the Workmen's Compensation Court over the State of Kentucky has given me the experience of knowing the needs of the laboring man and it has always been my lot in my thirty years of practice at the bar to sit on the side in the court house wherein is found the crutch, the widow and the orphan.

I shall conduct my campaign in a dignified manner and shall resort to no mud-slinging but shall refer to my opponents as high class gentlemen for I realize that the people will judge the kind of a Circuit Judge a man will make by the manner in which he conducts his campaign.

I am not the candidate of any special group or faction. I am in this race to the finish and I hope that before the campaign is over, I may have the opportunity to express my appreciation in person for the many pledges of support that I am receiving. There is no doubt that I will win if those who are for me will go to the polls on primary election day, Saturday, August 5, and cast their votes for me, and urge their friends to do likewise.

In view of the fact that a few years ago I was the first Democrat to ever carry the city of Olive Hill over my Republican opponent (which was over 400 majority Republican) and came within a few votes of carrying the entire county, it is no idle boast for me to say that, if nominated I can and will win over the Republican nominee in November.

If nominated and elected, it will be my constant aim to serve the people of the Judicial District to the best of my ability and I now place my candidacy in the hands of the voters of the Democratic primary, realizing that it is the voters that are to say whether August the 5th shall be my austerlitz or my Waterloo.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is always easier to make a bill than to pay it.

People are afraid of what they do not understand.

The maker of rules should be the foremost observer of them.

Nobody is too old to learn, but many of us are too lazy to study.

The old swimmin' hole will soon be the scene of considerable activity.

Yesterday is gone and tomorrow has not arrived; so why not live for today?

Very often the man who speeds to save a little time will take a little life.

A narrow-minded religion begets intolerance; a liberal religion begets love.

Individuals who know very little are easily persuaded that they know a great deal.

Large persons for living veterans do not necessarily honor the dead heroes of the nation.

The main question in Europe is whether Hitler can get as much as he wants without fighting.

Before eugenics will make much progress, summer nights, under southern skies, must be abolished.

If you keep your mouth shut long enough and tight enough, people will suspect that you have brains.

It's a foolish man who gets mad with a newspaper because he doesn't like the news that it prints.

What you think about another person is no more important than what the other person thinks about you.

We understand that some stars are 2,400 billion miles away, which is our idea of being far away.

A democratic state cannot be a success when the majority of the people expect the Government to do more for them than they do for the Government.

Many a businessman thinks he has the solution for all public problems, when, as a matter of fact, he is only concerned with the permanency of his profits.

Manufacturers who clamor for the Government to get out of the way of business would be the first to howl if the Government took them at their word and abolished the tariff.

Neither the nation nor the individual can balance a budget by spending money, but sometimes, in both cases, the spending of money is necessary regardless of income or budget.

New Power Company Soon

The Kentucky and West Virginia Power Company purchased a franchise from both the county and the city of West Liberty on Friday of last week. The Company has acquired all the necessary rights-of-way from here to Salyersville and will begin construction of a high power line at once. The rates for the services of the new Company will be less than one-half the rates we are paying now. The officials of the new Company are courteous and accommodating and will be easy to do business with.

Future Citizens

Because an employee of Morehead State Teachers' College was discharged by legal authorities as an economy measure, 60% of the students deserted their classes and paraded before the school and public in protest. If these young folks had known of the virtue of a hickory switch in their homes, and had now even the semblance of respect for authority they ought to have, the prospects of their becoming useful members of society would be greatly increased.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT QUESTION TO BE DECIDED MAY 29

At the meeting of May 19 the Fiscal Court is reported to have taken no action on the matter of whether Morgan County will have a health department next year. The reason given for the delay in deciding this matter was that the budget had not at that time been returned from Frankfort.
Provision for the continuance of the health department was not included in the proposed budget which was sent to Frankfort, and if the health work is to continue in this county, the necessary local appropriation will have to be included in the budget of the Fiscal Court promptly at its next meeting which is to held May 29.

We have been assured by the school authorities that their contribution of $500 will be kept up. The only serious question is concerning the contribution of the Fiscal Court. There remains $500 which the Fiscal Court must raise to make up the total local contribution of $1000 which is the least that will be accepted by the state.

Nearly ten thousand names were signed to a petition which was branded to the Fiscal Court on May 19, asking that the health department be included in the budget, so that its valuable work in this county might continue. The petition was in circulation only two days. Practically every one to whom it was presented signed it. There is no question that the work of the health department in this county has met with public approval, and that the overwhelming majority of the people would vote to retain it.

Should the health work not be continued it would mean a serious loss not only in dollars and cents for doctors' bills and other expenses on account of diseases that could be prevented, but a heavy loss in human lives, especially the lives of the children, that cannot be given a cash value.

As a representative of the Kentucky State Department of Health I wish to make it known to the people of Morgan County that while we would like to see the work continue in Morgan County, and have given Morgan County first claim on the allotment of the necessary state and federal funds, nevertheless, should the Morgan County Fiscal Court fail to make provision for this work we have many other counties on the waiting list to use the funds that were allotted to Morgan County.

Neither your health officer nor your nurse would love a day's pay, should the Morgan County Health Department be discontinued, for both would be transferred to other counties where they are badly needed.

We know that the principle of public health work is eternally sound.
Prevention of disease is the best investment that any community can make. Throughout the United States the people are awakening to this truth. Kentucky has the honor of being one of the leaders in this field.
We sincerely trust that the Morgan County Fiscal Court will not be so penny-wise and pound-foolish as to let the services of their health department lapse for lack of five hundred dollars.—WALLACE BYRD, M.D., Director, Morgan County Health Department.

FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

More living on porches is advocated by Miss Ida Hagman, home economist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Ninety percent of Kentucky homes have porches that can be used comfortably for six months of the year, she declares.

Fabrics that have been specially treated to develop crease resistance should be carefully washed. Like silk or wool, they should be laundered in lukewarm water, with neutral soap. Hat water and strong soap destroy their resistance to wrinkles.

Kill lice and mites before they cause hens to quit laying. Dust each fowl with sodium fluoride or, in warm weather, dip the hen in a solution of 10 gallons of lukewarm water in which a pound of sodium fluoride has been dissolved. Clean and spray roosts and other equipment with nicotine sulphate solution.

It is better not to turn pigs on pasture until they are at least three weeks old. Younger pigs may become chilled by wet pasture, which lowers their resistance and makes them liable to scours. Keep troughs clean and beds dry.

Best cakes are made when all ingredients are at room temperatures. At room temperature, the fat will be soft enough to beat easily, the eggs will whip to a greater volume than when cold, and the ingredients will blend to a better consistency.

The new world has the finest birds on earth; the United States has the finest birds in the New World; Kentucky has the finest birds in the United States; look for yourselves and see.—Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, University of Kentucky.

Crittenden County farmers inspecting crop demonstrations found Balboa rye two to three weeks ahead of other ryes and wheat and barley. A combination of Italian rye grass and crimson clover appeared to give the best cover for the ground.

Cooperative selling of strawberries found favor this year among growers of more than 250 acres in Jefferson County. Plans called for uniform grading, packing and labelling, with local leading points over the county.

Demonstrations have convinced Lincoln County farmers of the value of superphosphate to pasture and meadow crops. To date, 300 tons have been received in the county, most of which will go on grass and legume land.

Forestry development received major attention at a series of planning meetings in Pike County. Best trees to set, fire prevention and other phases of timber growing were discussed. Trees occupy a third to three-fourths of many farms in the county.

Following meetings in various communities, Grant County planners decided that most of the agricultural problems of the county were directly connected with poor soil. Especially did they emphasize the control of erosion by filling ditches and sowing cover crops.

GRASS COVERS

"Good grass and legumes are usually associated with successful farming in Kentucky, and poor grass and legumes are usually associated with poor farming," says Prof. George Roberts of the Kentucky Experiment Station. "The two chief sources of income for Kentucky farmers are tobacco and livestock and its products. The grass type of agriculture is necessary to economic production and high quality in both. Good grass is also necessary to the conservation of the soil for future production. In many years of experimental work with tobacco, the Agricultural Experiment Station has found that the highest quality of both burley and dark tobacco is produced following a good soil liberally manured. Of course, judicious liming, and the liberal use of phosphate where needed, are essential to the production of good soil. There is nothing comparable to good grass as a protection against erosion and leaching, the two greatest soil robbers when permitted to operate.

"Observation of the grass cover will teach farmers many valuable lessons. Find out why some fields are covered with vigorous grass and legumes and why some are not. It will be found that some differences are due to differences in time, method, and rate of seeding, some to the seeding mixtures used, and some to the way the land was treated before sowing.

"The statement is frequently heard that something happened eight or ten years ago that makes it more difficult to get good stands of grass than formerly. It is not likely that it is anything except something the farmers themselves are doing that is different from former practices.

"The Experiment Station has found in its work in many parts of the state that when the soil is properly treated and good seeding practices are used, good grass and legume stands and growth are obtained. Of course, adverse weather conditions will sometimes cause failure to get a stand on any soil.

"When good stands of grasses and legumes are seen that are showing a vigorous growth, it would be well to ask many questions about the practices that were used in producing the growth.

"It isn't merely differences in soil type or in the slope of the land that cause the differences. It will more than likely be found in the fertility of the soil due to management, in time of seeding, and in the seeding mixtures used. Farmers can learn much by observation and by asking questions of the successful growers.

"One thing is sure, and that is that unless the grass type of agriculture is more generally adopted in Kentucky, soils will become poorer thru erosion and leaching."

HARVARD MAN TO KENTUCKY

With Dr. John D. Black, noted Harvard University economist, as the principal instructor, a two-weeks intensive course in agricultural policies for the state and nation will be offered June 12-28, during the summer school at the University of Kentucky, it is announced by Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture.

Other instructors will include Dr. H. Bruce Price, economist and head of the department of markets and finance, and Dr. Howard W. Beers and Prof. David L. MacFarlane, economists and sociologists, at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Experiment Station.

Dean Cooper said the course will be of special interest to county farm agents and home demonstration agents, teachers of agriculture and home economics, and representatives of the Farm Credit Administration, the Farm Security Administration, the Soil Conservation Service, and other governmental agencies.

Dr. Black will give 15 lectures on the "general development of the principles underlying agricultural policy, including analysis of the place of agriculture in the general economy, goals or objectives of agricultural policy, causes and development of the present agricultural problem, appraisal of current and proposed programs, and legislation for remedial action," according to the prospectus of the course.

Westminster Abbey Treasures

Chief among the Westminster abbey treasures are two Thirteenth century paintings, filling two arches of the south wall of Poet's Corner. One is of Christ showing His wounds to St. Thomas; the other is of St. Christopher carrying the Christ child in his arms.

Knox County's courthouse and jail are without city water service again. The Utilities company cut off both water and lights when the county failed to pay the bills for same. It is probable some arrangement will be made to restore the service at an early date, as lack of these services greatly handicaps the operation of the jail and county courthouse.—The Barbourville Advocate.

It has been settled definitely that two automobiles were in collision at 6:30 p.m. Monday at Big Bullsbridge on U. S. Highway No. 60, West One is said to have overturned on its side and another "suffered" a flat tire. But when an ambulance, a garage wrecking car and Deputy Sheriff Glenn Howerton arrived at the scene, and let it be said they didn't linger, all the participants had departed.—The Shelby News.

Versailles, Ky., May 12.—On the opening day of Mayterm of Woodford Circuit Court, 33 dog owners pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with having harbored unlicensed dogs. Each was fined $10 and costs. Ninety others indicted filed affidavits that they did not own a dog. Many who procured licenses for dogs, after being indicted filed demurrers, which Judge Ardery overruled. Altogether there were indictments against 288 men and women. Dog cases occupied most of the day.

In less than six months five newly married couples have lived for a short time in a tiny two-room farmhouse on Johns Creek, near Goble Gap. It is now occupied by the sixth couple, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Brown, newlyweds of Brandy Keg. It is a rumor that it will soon be open for a seventh bride and bridegroom, who are "looking forward." At last, because of its romantic past, this quiet, little edifice between the public highway and the rippling old creek has been named Honeymoon Cottage.—Floyd County Times.

A community, like an individual, gets rich by selling more than it buys. If the reader will consider Estill County as a unit the fact remains that to become richer it must export, that is sell, more than it imports or buys, from other parts of the world. For the reason, when one spends money at home the tendency is for a larger proportion of the sale price to remain in local hands, and thus assist in the ultimate enrichment of the entire community. Money sent out of town seldom comes back. It should not be so spent unless there is not another alternative.—The Estill Herald.

There was something of a stir at Washington when President Roosevelt gave orders to purchase 48,000 lb. of canned corned beef for the Navy from Argentina, because it can be bought at 15 cents per pound tariff paid while the U. S. brand is held at 23 cents a pound. The tariff on beef being 6 cents a pound represents a total saving of 14 cents a pound over American beef. It is further argued that the South American beef is a better quality. But why should the American price on beef be so much as 23 cents a pound when produced from cattle at the present prices on foot? We read an account of this administrative tilt in Saturday's Courier-Journal in a column just to the right of a news item telling us the U. S. Senate had voted over a billion dollar aid to farmers. And even though their finished product of beef sells for twice and a half times more and these things are hard to understand and makes us wonder why they are so.—Clay City Times.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Reorganization

Last week the President sent to Congress his second plan of reorganization which called for a re-grouping of about a score of government bureaus and agencies. The plan is expected to reduce the cost of government by about $1,250,000 a year and, it was announced that this would be the last plan submitted to the present session of Congress.

Not Responsible

The Japanese Government has indicated its intention of denying responsibility for bombings that damage Third Power properties when they are located near unmistakable military objectives. In their efforts to tighten down, the Japanese also plan to stop Third Powers from sending supplies to victims of the war in China.

Mexican Oil

A settlement with Mexico over expropriated oil properties is "within reach," according to Donald Richberg, attorney for American oil companies. The general lines of the agreement were tentatively drawn last week at a conference in Mexico, and, it is understood, will apply to the British and Dutch oil companies as well as to American companies. Generally, the companies will continue to operate their properties for fifty years under a contract with the Mexican Government and after that time the properties will pass into the possession of the Mexican Government.

To Vote on War

With the conclusion of public hearing on the Neutrality Act interest has shifted towards the revival of the War Referendum Amendment. Public hearings before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee began last week and a number of witnesses are expected to be heard.

For Relief

The conference of mayors continues to advocate the continuance of relief by the Federal Government because the cities say they are unable to shoulder the burden. While opposing the proposal that relief be turned over to the States, some of them appear concerned over the increasing deficit and suggest a pay-as-you-go plan.

Praises Radio

President Roosevelt last week made the first of a series of electrically transcribed broadcasts for use over local radio stations. The records are intended to explain governmental activities. The President said that radio, although in its infancy, already rivals the schools and the press in disseminating information. While the Government has set up controls to prevent complete confusion, the Chief Executive declared that in other respects the radio is as free as the press. Moreover, in some communities, "only through the radio is it possible to overtake loudly-proclaimed untruths or greatly exaggerated half-truths," declared the President.

For Third Term

The book, Carter Glass, published last week, reveals that Woodrow Wilson wanted to run for a third term in 1920 in order to lead in person the fight for the adoption of the covenant of the League of Nations. After the Covenant was adopted, Wilson planned to resign. The friends of the War President were against his candidacy because of his health, thinking the exertion would probably result in his death.

Duck Hawk Is Speedy

No land animals can ever hope to attain the speed of the duck hawk which rates 180 miles an hour in the air, nor that of the speediest of all living creatures the deer fly, the male of which flies at the rate of 816 miles an hour.

AUTO CLUB MOVES

The Auto Club moved into its new spacious home on 17th Street, opposite the Ashland Daily Independent, Saturday. The entire club personnel worked late Saturday night to place everything in order—so its members and the traveling public might not be inconvenienced by any interruption in club service.

Larger quarters will facilitate club work and will provide conveniences for members and visitors to Ashland who are always welcomed and extended every courtesy that they may think of Ashland as it really is: "The Friendly City," and wish to return again.

The spacious lobby will be furnished in beautiful chromium furniture where the visitor may decide upon the vacation that he may select. Other office equipment is standard with ample working space.

Travel publications featured are the finest to be found anywhere, and the club now provides all the services and benefits to be found in the largest clubs in the country.

Considering the many branches of club activity, it would be difficult to say which is the most outstanding. However, we find one of the most important from the standpoint of convenience to the member is Emergency Travel News. Any condition which suddenly arises upon the highways of the nation which renders a road impossible, or which makes the road dangerous for motor travel is immediately reported by wire and special bulletins. This service is not one that occurs daily, but is most important when it does happen.

The enlarged facilities are the culmination of years of progressive planning—the beginning of more ambitious plans, with adequate quarters for years to come—equipped to enable the club to give members and the public the very acme in service.

The new club home, when fully completed, will be the most beautiful of any automobile club in Kentucky. We invite you to visit us and take advantage of the conveniences we have provided for your comfort and pleasure.

Use 80,000 Men To Track Spies

Vast Army of Government Employees Pressed Into Nation-Wide Hunt.

WASHINGTON.—Elmer Lincoln Irey, the man who put Al Capone behind bars and who set the trap that caught Bruno Richard Hauptmann, directed an army of 80,000 government workers in one of the most extensive spy hunts since the World War.

Treasury officials declined to discuss details of the newly conceived espionage drive. But it was learned that an order directing heads of treasury department investigative agencies to be on the alert for spy activities, was intended to apply to every employee of the department.

Clue May Be Found Anywhere. Irey's theory is that any treasury employee might stumble across some spy clue in the course of routine duties. Such a clue would be relayed to him, who, as co-ordinator of treasury enforcement activities, would assign a trained investigator to the case or pass the information on to another interested government agency. Irey is a major in the military intelligence division of the officers reserve corps.

When President Roosevelt announced recently that the federal government would undertake a co-ordinated drive against foreign espionage in this country Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau selected Irey to head the treasury's phase of the work because of his effective accomplishments in criminal detection. A native of Kansas City, Mo., he gained his knowledge of undercover work as an aid to the chief post office inspector. To the public he is best known for his work in the Capone and Lindbergh cases.

When Capone was riding the heights of lawless power Irey entered the case. He created a secret "Capone squad," which eventually pieced together an amazing record of illicit profits leading directly to Capone and sending him and some of his henchmen to federal prisons.

Worked in Lindbergh Case. Irey entered the Lindbergh case following underworld rumors that the crime was committed by the Capone mob. It was he who induced Charles A. Lindbergh to record the serial numbers of the $50,000 ransom and to include conspicuous gold certificates among the bills. Hauptmann was arrested when he passed one of the ransom bills.

Irey was named co-ordinator of treasury enforcement agencies September 15, 1937, with general supervision over law-enforcement activities of the secret service, coast guard, customs service, narcotics bureau, alcohol tax unit and the internal revenue intelligence unit.

'Death Pistols' of Wilkes

Booth Are Claimed by 200

TUSCALOOSA, ARK.—More than 200 pistols with which Abraham Lincoln was killed are in existence, if the stories of their owners are to be believed.

This is the statement of Prof. Frank J. Foster of the University of Alabama faculty, who for 12 years had been collecting old firearms and reading about them.

"Often the possessors of the Lincoln pistols get confused in their chronology and exhibit as the fatal weapon one which was not even made until years after the assassination of the Civil War President," Foster said.

Foster is wary of most of the tales about old firearms and their reputed former owners. He said the story often associated with a gun—sometimes untrue—and the sentiment attached to it frequently increases its value, in the opinion of the owner.

Foster's collection includes about 40 early American and European pistols, ranging from vest pocket models to .60-caliber "horse pistols." His special interest in old Colt revolvers has netted him several at least 100 years old. His collection includes "pepper boxes," with six-in-one barrels, French "pinfires" and old flintlocks.

One of the most interesting phases of collecting, Foster points out, is the primitive means of exchange so often resorted to in bartering and trading.

Phone Exchange Covers

Nearly 2,000 Square Miles

ASHLAND, MAINE.—The Ashland telephone exchange serves nearly 2,000 square miles of farm and forest area.

Regularly employing three operators, the exchange serves residents from the Oxbow Flats on the south to the Plantation of Nashville on the north—over 40 miles—and from Castle Hill to Garfield in the other direction—15 miles. On the west the thin thread of its telephone wires is a web of communication for the dozens of forest service men.

Connected to the exchange are three state lines leading into the forest. The foresters, isolated in cabins 50 or more miles in the woods, otherwise would be cut off entirely from civilization.

REDWINE

The Redwine community has been greatly improved by the erecting of two new buildings. A new school house was completed last fall by the WPA workers and a new church building was built this spring by free labor.

After the school house was completed the Redwine community decided to purchase the old school building and use the material to build a church.

The County Board of Education agreed to sell the old school house for $75.00. Upon the recommendation of M. B. Whitt they decided to donate one third of that amount to the community and offered the building for $50.00 cash. The cash was made up by donations as follows:

Andy Watson	$10.00
Mrs. Lula Gibson	10.00
Leonard Todd	5.00
Rowland Bowling	5.00
David Lewis	5.00
C. K. Stacy	5.00

Boyd Adkins	1.00
Nathan Miller	1.00
Ben Perry	1.00
Beecher Green	.50
Bernice Blair	.50

TOTAL	$52.25

The balance of $2.25 was put with $4.00 raised by the Redwine Sunday school and used to buy lumber for building church seats. A keg of nails and 20 pounds roofing nails were donated by Bernice Elam of Morehead. Andy Watson donated a lot for the church building.

The wrecking of the old building and rebuilding on the new site was all accomplished by free labor. Willing hands who were interested in this project gave of their time and energy freely and the building stands as a testimony to goodness and blessings of the Lord over us.

Sunday school has already been conducted in the new building and the first church service will be held next Sunday night, May 28, at 7 p.m.

LONESOME

GAMBLING NOT AN INSTINCT

Many well meaning persons are much concerned over the fact that several millions of dollars are sent from this country to Ireland every little while for sweepstake tickets.

Still others, because of being selfishly interested, are similarly concerned. Both groups think it would be wise and highly practical if all laws in the United States against gambling were repealed and lotteries permitted here, thus preventing the gambler's money from leaving the country.

The pathetic thought pointed out by observers about the thinking of the members of the first group is that they are apparently not willing to start a crusade against illegally sending money out of the country for gambling purposes, but are also hesitant about opposing chance games of all sorts. Talk to them about entering such a crusade and the vast majority will throw up their hands hopelessly with the declaration that gambling is a human instinct.

Keen observers of human traits hold that gambling is no more an instinct, a native or hereditary factor in human behavior than is the taking of opiates an instinct. Gambling is a condition of the mind in relation to certain desires, a condition which can be rationalized by the addict that it will cease to control his behavior. Literally thousands of people have cured themselves of the so-called gambling instinct. Millions of others have been cured by statutory restrictions against gambling—provisions and acts which became laws after the English Colonies and the mother country had gone through periods of excessive indulgence in games of chance, particularly by the use of lotteries, many of which were set up and conducted to raise money for the same laudable purposes such as now favored by the modern devotee of gambling.

A vicious feature of the lottery and other forms of gambling is that those who lose are tempted to put in more money in the hope of retrieving their losses, thus often depriving themselves and their dependents of essentials.

Students of the lottery show that it was never a source of profit in the long run, even to the winner, for he who wins a stake in games of chance in some way loses it and, in his conscience, has a sense of spiritual degeneration as a result of his false material gains.

Expert observers of human behavior the world over contend that the lottery, by whatever agency authorized, is a blur upon the morals and well-being of the individual who patronizes it as well as upon the agency itself. The false promise induces speculation. It suggests methods of getting something for nothing—of obtaining a competency without honest, decent industry and labor. Promoting immoral tendencies gambling, for whatever purposes instituted, frequently leads to other solid means of gain and often changes the gambling dupe into a thief, a forger, a defaulter, and occasionally a suicide.

The good citizen, while deprecating the laxness of law enforcement, prefers that the money of gamblers shall go out of the country rather than to condone it by legalizing it in his own country.

SOIL IMPROVEMENT

Lexington, Ky.—How a one-sided program of fertilization can eventually reduce crop production and rob the soil of valuable plant food elements was explained by Prof. George Roberts, of the University of Kentucky.

A well balanced system of soil improvement is the Kentucky farmer's best insurance for maintaining fertility and crop productivity, Prof. Roberts pointed out.

"Too many farmers," he said, "think that when they have limed and fertilized their land with phosphates, so that legumes can be grown, the continued use of this treatment is all that is necessary to keep their land productive."

"After growing a good legume crop, the yield of corn or tobacco may be so much better than previously that it would appear they were justified in their belief. However, when something is added to the soil to make it produce more, obviously the larger yields draw more heavily upon all the plant nutrients in the soil and exhaust those not added much more rapidly."

"For example, if the yield of crops is doubled, as is often the case when lime and phosphate are used, the draft on potash is twice as great. Then unless provision is made for returning potash to the soil, a time will come when crops will not get enough and yields will be seriously reduced."

"Potash starvation shows up quicker on tobacco and alfalfa than on other crops, but even corn will sooner or later be affected."

"Fortunately, most of the potash used by grain crops is in the stalks and straw and much of that used by tobacco is in the stalk. Also, about nine-tenths of the potash in feed consumed by farm animals is excreted in the manure, but about two-thirds of it is in liquid manure. If manure is carefully saved and returned to the soil, then the potash supply will be maintained on most Kentucky soils for most crops."

"However, it will be found profitable to use some potash in the fertilizer for tobacco, unless manured very liberally. Alfalfa grown on the same land will almost certainly suffer from a potash shortage unless the ground is manured, or potash fertilizers are used along with other needed fertilizers."
